

Soren Kierkegaard Society of the UK Study Day

This year's study day and AGM will take place in Sheffield on Saturday May 19th from 10.30-4.00. The venue will be the Humanities Research Institute, Gell Street, Sheffield (maps and travel advice available at <http://www.sheffield.ac.uk/visitors/mapsandtravel>).

We are delighted to welcome two speakers this year who have both recently written highly original studies where Kierkegaard is a significant conversation partner. Marcus Pound's Theology, Psychoanalysis and Trauma stages a conversation between Kierkegaard and Lacan which throws new light on both. Andrew Shanks's exploration of the religious dimensions of the thought of Gillian Rose reveals the importance of Kierkegaard in her philosophical and theological development, again providing new perspectives on Kierkegaard's work. In the afternoon, Kate Harrington and Paniel Reyes from Sheffield have kindly agreed to lead us all in reading a passage from Kierkegaard's writings; details of the passage in question will follow. The AGM of the Society will take place at the end of the day.

There will be a nominal cost of £10 (£5 students) for the day to cover our expenses, payable on arrival by cheque or cash. Tea and coffee will be provided and there are a number of options for lunch nearby. For further information or to indicate that you intend to come, please email h.pyper@sheffield.ac.uk.
